TAS- International Food Fair October 30, 2010
 10:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.

For a long time the Rotary Club of Taipei did not have much contact with our own Interact. Thanks to Rotarian Equus, I found out last week that they still exist, and they do have proper officers in place. This Saturday is a great opportunity to meet them and to show that their Mother Club is willing to support them. Please visit TAS for their food fair as indicated in the e-flyer below. I will also be there in the afternoon.

Regards,

President Story

10 MINUTE TRUTHS

By: Aaron Davis

Life Is Too Short to Spend Forty Hours a Week Doing Something You Hate

I never did a day's work in my life. It was all fun.
Thomas Edison

Love Your Work

It's sad and somewhat amazing how many people destroy their weekends because they are dreading the fact that Monday is inching closer by the hour. There are millions of people who hit the alarm clock each morning, stricken with anxiety because they don't want to face another classroom filled with students, another day confined to an office cubicle, another business flight to Chicago, another shift at the factory, another day of making sales presentations, another morning in court, another meeting with the board of directors ... the list could go on and on.

Friend, life doesn't have to be this way. Let me let you in on a little secret that could yield you tremendous peace of mind. If you are not happy with your career, do something else. Don't you owe it to yourself?

1. What do you want personally and professionally?
2. If you love your job, GREAT! If you despise it, do something about it.
3. Begin by searching your heart and mind, and then ask God to give you the confidence to take steps towards the career you've always wanted.

Classification

One thing very unique about Rotary membership is classification. When professionals join a Rotary club, they do so as a representative of their classification—their particular business or profession. Rotarians have the dual responsibility of representing their vocation within their club and exemplifying the ideal of Rotary within the workplace.

Each active member of a Rotary club is classified in accordance with the member's business, profession, or type of community service. By assigning each member a classification based on his or her business or profession, this system ensures that the club's membership reflects the business and professional composition of its community. The number of members holding a particular classification is limited according to the size of the club. For clubs with less than 50 members, they can elect maximum five members in a classification. For clubs with 50 or more members, the maximum number of members in a classification is 10 percent of the club's active membership.

However, to admit more members in one single classification, some clubs classify their members in creative ways. For example, instead of putting "Legal service" for lawyers as one classification, a club may subdivide it to "business law", "criminal law", and "intellectual property right", etc. Likewise, there may be boutique hotels, international hotels, and resort hotels for hoteliers. In the long run, the club may become an association of a single profession and may lose its diversity and representation of its community.

The classification principle allows a club to achieve a more diverse professional representation of the club's community. The goal is professional diversity, which enlivens the club's social atmosphere and provides a rich resource of occupational expertise to carry out service projects and provide club leadership. Each club should have a well-balanced membership in which no one business, profession or type of community service predominates. So look around your community and find more people to fill more classifications and make our club a diversified Rotary club!

President Story attended the Taipei Long Sun Rotary Halloween Party on October 30

Dear President Story:

On behalf of the Taipei Long Sun Rotary Club, thank you so much for attending our 2010 Halloween Party! I hope you have enjoyed our "special" Halloween meeting session last night. Please do arrange time to attend our upcoming Christmas Party on December 25.

Best regards,

Apollo

THE DICTIONARY OF CLICHES

Rubs Me the Wrong Way. Annoys me; I don't agree with what is being said or done. It is what happens when one's hair is rubbed backward [it may feel good at first, but it can become annoying and uncomfortable] or when you rub a plane against the grain of wood. Charles Hamilton Aide offered the figurative meaning in Carr of Carrluon [1862]: "Don't rub her prejudices up the wrong way ... if you can help it."

Hit Below the Belt. To act unfairly or against the rules. The rules of boxing, laid down in 1865 by the Marquess of Queensberry and John G. Chamber, forbade hitting below the belt. The transfer to and kind of unfairness in a contest from about that time.
